EXPECT FRANCE, GREAT BRITAIN TO PAY DEC. 15

However, Former May Make One More Plea To Mr. Hoover

BULLETIN
Paris, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A report in the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies this evening was that Premier Herriot, in agreement with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, had addressed a message to President Hoover asking him to make a last effort to arrange a moratorium on the debt payments due Dec. 15.

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Indications from Paris that England would pay her war debt installment on December 15 and that Premier Herriot would recommend to Parliament that France pay interest due, lightened the atmosphere in Washington today but failed to bring any official comment.

Secretary Stimson was completing the American answer to France's second note requesting postponement and reconsideration and the State Department announced this reply would be handed to Ambassador Claude I today or tomorrow.

The answer to Great Britain made yesterday, it was indicated probably would be made public in both countries through tomorrow morning's papers.

It was assumed in official quarters that the note said again that Congress alone could change the debt situation, that the President would ask creation of an agency to study it, and advised that payment be made.

At least six countries have asked for a new moratorium, the Belgian government making a second appeal yesterday. President Hoover is expected soon to transmit a special message on the debt question to Congress.

Paris, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Premier Herriot, in conference today with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, received the impression that England will pay the $85,500,000 due the United States on Dec. 15.

The report was that the Premier left the conference disposed to recommend to the French Parliament that this country pay the $20,000,000 interest due America on the same date, but with the stipulation that this will be the last payment pending negotiations.

It was understood that M. Herriot told Mr. MacDonald that he would have to consult Parliament before taking a definite stand.

Mr. MacDonald told him, he said, that public opinion in England favored payment to the United States. He told the British Prime Minister that French opinion seemed to be against payment.

Act Independently
An official communique issued after the conference said the two countries will continue independent action with regard to the debts but also will continue their efforts to obtain by international cooperation measures calculated to promote the economic restoration of the world.

Information from official quarters was that when Mr. MacDonald explained the nature of the American refusal to adjourned payment he insisted particularly that apprehensions are felt in England that the American attitude might constitute a menace to the Lausanne accords.

M. Herriot emphasized that there is general opposition in France to payment of the debt by installment on the part of both Parliament and the public.

French Are Hostile
He explained that this hostility is based especially on the moratorium initiative taken by President Hoover and on the communique issued at Washington after the President had conferred with

Young Folks Hurt In Crash This Morn
Alva Cox of this city and Misses Mabel and Thelma Hart of Oregon, en route to the latter city from Champaign, were painfully injured when the former's automobile left the highway and crashed into a culvert about six miles south of Dixon on route 2 at 5:30 o'clock this morning and all are now patients in the Dixon public hospital.

Each of the three suffered cuts, bruises and loss of several teeth; while Miss Mabel suffered a fractured jaw bone, a deep scalp wound and a cut across the nose and an eye.

Christmas Customs From Foreign Lands

In Poland, the peasants believe the cattle are endowed with the power of human speech in the hour when Christ was born. So they refrain from entering the stables at that hour, but before midnight mass, visit the animals with courteous greetings and a promise of extra allowances of grain, beets and straw for the morrow.

RAILROADS PUT THEIR PROBLEMS UP TO COOLIDGE

Present Seven-Point Program To Transportation Body

New York, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The railroads, tooting for a clear track to prosperity, delivered a bulky document to Calvin Coolidge and associates today.

It contained the story of the railroads' plight, a plea for "equality of opportunity" and a seven-point program intended to rescue the nation's gigantic network of steel and rolling stock from a situation called grave.

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, spoke for the railroads of the country in presenting the statement to the National Transportation Committee, headed by Coolidge.

Summarized, the recommendations were:

1. Amend the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act so as to permit loans to railroads upon certificate of the Interstate Commerce Commission that a proposed loan is, in its judgment, adequately secured or that the past record of earnings of that carrier and its prospect for future earnings furnish reasonable assurance of the applicant's ability to repay.
2. Repeat the recapture provisions of section 15A of the Interstate Commerce Act, which requires a railroad to give the government one-half of its earnings above 6 per cent.
3. Federal and state regulation of commercial vehicles operating over the public highways.
4. Federal government should retire from barge operation on the inland waterways in competition with the railroads and the railroads should be permitted to operate on the water, including service through the Panama Canal.
5. Railroads should be relieved.

The company has been playing on the Pacific coast and is enroute to Houston, Tex. where it will close the season.

SLOW RESPONSE TO GOODFELLOW PLEA REGRETTED

Prompt Contributions are Necessary To See Move Succeed

FIREMEN OFFER
Members of the Dixon fire department today offered to aid the Goodfellow movement by repairing any broken joys which can be rebuilt and which donors wish to give to provide a Christmas to some needy Dixon child.

Your membership in the Evening Telegraph Goodfellow Club is worth more to you than a membership in the finest, most exclusive club in the land. The money you may donate to the Goodfellow Club will do more good than you can do with it in any other way.

Donations to the Goodfellow Club go directly into help for children in destitute homes. Not a penny of your money will go anywhere else and it will be spent only when careful investigation shows that it is needed.

There are hundreds of homes in Dixon this year where hunger and cold clamor at the door and where there can be not even a suspicion of a Santa Claus unless the good fellows of Dixon and vicinity will reach out a helping hand to aid them.

Must Not Lose Faith
Just because there is a depression is no reason why little folks should be made to lose their faith in Santa Claus or the significance of Christmas. Most of those children are in homes where the standard of living always has been high. They are suffering keenly for the lack of even the necessities of life and a touch of luxury, a little fruit or candy and perhaps a modest toy will bring such a great happiness that we must not withhold it.

Time is short and with such a great number of youngsters to care for it is imperative that we know very soon how much money will be available so that plans can be made accordingly.

Your own Christmas will be much happier if you help bring cheer to some humble home. When you gladden childish hearts and bring smiles to wan, wistful little faces, you will enjoy it just as much as they will. For the sake of these hopeful little folks, we ask you, please, help them to have a happy Christmas.

Official Report On Aviation Submitted

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—An official report that aeronautic science has failed to develop a heavier-than-air plane capable of efficient "transatlantic air transport service to Europe," but holding out a hope for the future was sent to Congress today by President Hoover.

The report was the eighteenth drawn by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, created by Congress in 1915 as a federal agency to "plan and coordinate research programs for the development of aircraft."

The committee lists in its membership Charles A. Lindbergh, Orville Wright, Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, Chief of the Army Air Corps; Rear Admiral William A. Moffet, chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics; and others under the chairmanship of President Joseph Ames of Johns Hopkins University. Extensive research laboratories are maintained at Langley Field, Virginia.

Clouds Now Worst Hazard For Flyers

New York, Dec. 8.—(AP)—So far has aviation conquered transatlantic flying obstacles that clouds now are the greatest hazard. With this conclusion, Dr. James H. Kimball, the "weather-mentor" of all trans-Atlantic flyers from Lindbergh to the present, summed up the prospects of coming Atlantic air service before the American Society of Mechanical Engineers today.

Improvements in planes, motors and instruments," he said, "have minimized the dangers of storms and falling motors, once regarded as the twin terrors of ocean flyers. Thanks to a more adequate weather-reporting service the meteorologist is able to chart not only the great ocean cyclones, but to picture their associated air currents."

The constitution of Argentina requires that the president of that country must be a Roman Catholic.

YOUTH FATALLY HURT IN STATE HOSPITAL PIT

Green County Patient Crushed Under A Falling Rock

Walter Kendall, 19-year-old epileptic patient at the Dixon state hospital was killed almost instantly yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock while working with a detail of patients in the institution stone quarry. Kendall was working on a slope when a large piece of rock broke off suddenly above him crushing down upon him before he could jump to safety. He sustained a fractured spine, both legs were broken, ribs were fractured and he was otherwise bruised about the lower part of the body.

Jesse Gray was in charge of the detail of patients, who were removing rock from the quarry to be crushed and used in the construction and repair of roads on the institution grounds. He and other patients heard the large piece of rock crack and called to Kendall, who attempted to jump away. In so doing his foot slipped, and the heavy slab, about four feet square and more than a foot in thickness, fell on him. Death resulted while the injured man was being taken to the institution hospital ward.

Kendall was a very active patient, having been committed to the Dixon state hospital from Green County January 24, 1931. He had been working in the stone quarry and gravel pit for some time and was considered a very careful and experienced employee. Coroner F. M. Banker conducted an inquest at the Jones funeral home this morning, the jury returning a verdict of death due to accidental injuries. The body is to be sent to Rockhouse this afternoon for the funeral and interment.

SUSPECT HELD FOR MURDER OF GLOBE-TROTTER

'Man In Gray' Found: He Denies Having Slain Yachtman

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Arrested in a shack in the Los Angeles river bottoms early today, William James Guy, 24-year-old soldier of fortune, was brought to Long Beach protesting he had no part in the mysterious slaying of Captain Walter Wanderwell, globe-trotter and adventurer.

Guy, who police said was the suspected "man in gray" seen loitering about the P. & O dock here shortly after Wanderwell was slain aboard his around-the-world yacht Carmra, was booked in Los Angeles on suspicion of murder.

"I had nothing whatsoever to do with the murder," declared Guy, a native of Cardiff, Wales, as detectives questioned him at length.

The young Britisher, who admitted entering the country illegally and said he voted in the recent presidential election, was also booked here for illegal entry and voting while an alien.

"If I had any information on the slaying, I would gladly give it to police," Guy declared. "Many people in my opinion would have had a motive to do what someone did do."

Machine To Make Milk Much Richer

Madison, Wis., Dec. 8.—(AP)—A machine that imparts the health giving qualities to vitamin D to fluid milk at the rate of more than 3000 quarts an hour was given final tests at the University of Wisconsin today.

Developed to make the Stoenbeck process for directly irradiating milk with vitamin D commercially feasible, the machine will be available to all dairies licensed by Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation.

"It utilizes the qualities of ultraviolet rays in such a practical and economical way that the irradiation of milk is now only a matter of snapping an electric switch," Dr. Harry L. Russell, Director of the Foundation, said.

New Mexico Mine Blast Toll Is 14

Madrid, N. M., Dec. 8.—(AP)—This coal mining town, one of the oldest in the state, accepted philosophically today the explosion which killed 14 miners.

"It is a fate that sulks every miner," said one of the 64 who escaped yesterday's underground blast at the Morgan-Jones mine. "Why not accept it?"

Prohibition Joy To Happy Yeast Bug—

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Nathan B. Williams of Washington was announced.

The Ways and Means committee of the House of Representatives leaned forward, Chairman Collier, presiding at the hearing on legalization or real beer, inquired whom he might represent.

"Only myself," said Williams, and proceeded.

"You can't stop nature's law of fermentation by congressional law. You gentlemen have seen the festive dandelion pursued on the Capitol ground for this purpose."

"When Congress enacted prohibition every yeast bug in the land chorled with glee and if you haven't heard a yeast bug chorle, put your head next to a keg of working wine."

Realignment of Senate Republican committee chairmanships for the remainder of this Congress today placed Senator Hale of Maine head of the Appropriations committee; Shortridge of California Naval; and Glenn of Illinois, elections.

Rush Beer Bill

The rush to get out a beer bill for House consideration continued in the Ways and Means committee, with witness after witness testifying in favor of a 3.2 brew. Dry spokesmen will be heard later.

The joint Veterans committee decided to start tomorrow on short hearings on veterans legislation and economy plans.

Representative Patman (D. Tex.) renewed his drive for immediate payment of the bonus, making a speech to the House.

Hearings on the Democratic farm aid program will be launched next Tuesday by the House Agriculture committee, with plans to limit the study to one week and then put a bill up for passage.

No Cut for Veterans

Democratic leaders do not expect the House Veterans committee to act this session on President Hoover's proposals to reduce veterans' benefits $127,000,000 a year.

The President's recommendations were included in his annual budget message, and were referred to the House Appropriations committee.

FRED LEAKE IS REAPPOINTED AS SUPT. HI-WAYS

Supervisors Complete Business Wednesday Afternoon

Members of the Board of Supervisors expected to hear a new proposal from the officers of the Lee County Taxpayers Association presented at their session yesterday afternoon when a delegation from that organization requested to be heard. Instead, Dr. W. F. Aydelotte utilized but a very few minutes of the board's time in which he expressed the gratitude of the association for the progress that has been made by the board in the interest of the taxpayers. He indicated, however, that a proposition would be submitted at a later date.

The board adjourned their December meeting until Monday, December 19 at which time the finance committee will file its reports. The adjourned meeting was necessary on account of the lateness of the tax sales, it was stated.

Fred W. Leake of Amboy was unanimously appointed by the board to serve as county superintendent of Highways for another six year term, which will expire June 30, 1938. His ability to serve the county was certified to the board by Harry H. Cleveland of the Department of Works and Buildings at Springfield. Superintendent Leake has completed one term of six years as County Superintendent of Highways which expired last June, when he was reappointed by the board but the certification of his appointment was not received until recently being dated December 5 at Springfield.

HEAD OF CLOSED BANK ABSOLVES FORMER CASHIER

Letter Says the Treasurer Of Illinois College Is Guiltless

BULLETIN
St. Louis, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The Post-Dispatch said this morning that the reported disappearance of $504,000 in bonds of Illinois College endowment funds from the vaults of the Ayers National Bank shortly before it closed, one official of the bank declared himself clear of responsibility.

William G. Goebel, treasurer of the 103-year-old college and cashier of the Ayes Bank, made public a statement he said he had obtained from M. F. Dunlap, president of the bank, exonerating the cashier of any intent of wrong doing in permitting others to use the bonds as collateral for loans of $285,000.

The banks declared they did not know the bonds belonged to the college.

Goebel said Dunlap had signed the following statement:

"After seeing tonight's Courier, I feel that you are entitled to a statement which may be used for publication if desired.

"With reference to the bonds, you are blameless as they were requested of you with the belief that full restitution would be made. You did not receive one cent on account of the transaction nor out of it."

Mr. Goebel, who has maintained strict silence in regard to the transaction since the day the bank closed, had nothing to say in addition to the statement given to him by Mr. Dunlap, nor of the events which led up to the statement.

Dunlap could not be located immediately for verification of the statement attributed to him.

Action Uncertain

In Chicago Dr. George E. Baxter, chairman of the college's Board of Trustees, said it was true the bonds were missing but he declined to state what action the board would take.

A similar attitude was expressed by City Attorney Walter A. Bellatti and State Attorney William H. Ashburn of Morgan county. However, city officials said records revealed that deeds to homes transferred to trustees of the college on Nov. 21, the day the bank closed.

A statement by Guy Young, the Grand Chancellor of the Illinois Knights of Pythias lodge, revealed that the lodge had about $42,000 involved in the bank. The money was being cared for, he said, by Dunlap, who was treasurer of the lodge.

First announcement of the disappearance of the bonds came late yesterday from Dr. J. M. Ames, Acting-President of the 103-year-old institution. Later presidents of

CAME SUDDENLY FROM CANADIAN NORTHWEST AREA

Almost Whole Of North American Continent Shivers Today

The coldest weather of the current winter was experienced in Dixon and vicinity this morning, the government thermometer at Shuck & Bates store registering 6 degrees above zero at 6 o'clock.

By The Associated Press

A premature thrust of winter sent shivers up and down a large portion of the North American continent today.

Striking suddenly from the Canadian northwest, the cold wave spread from the Pacific northwest, across the west and midwest, and even into the southwest, bringing suffering to all those unprepared for the onslaught.

Routing spring-like weather in many parts of the country, the icy blast, described by the Weather Bureau as resulting from a gigantic condition of high pressure, over-spread the affected areas, bringing sub-zero temperatures.

30 Below In Mont.
An unofficial temperature reading at Georgetown Lake near Anaconda, Mont., recorded 30 degrees below zero. Thief River Falls, Wallace, Idaho a blizzard, with 11 below, was raging.

Temperatures in the east were sagging.

The extreme far west was also touched, with freezing temperatures reported in the Sacramento valley and northern sections of California.

Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas, as well as parts of Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and Washington were blanketed by snow.

In Chicago, where there was a sharp drop to 11 above zero last night, a word of consolation came for further generations. It was voiced by Dr. R. E. Wilson, formerly of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who said in an address that people are now living in the "tail end of the glacial age," and that 1,000 years from now the earth will enjoy perpetually warm, mild and dry weather.

SUIT AGAINST BANKER THROWN OUT BY JUDGE

Holds Divorced Wife Of Norman Harris Operated Game

Chicago, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The $300,000 suit for breach of contract brought by James S. Clark of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., against Norman W. Harris, Chicago banker, was dismissed today as contrary to public policy and based upon a corrupt, illegal and immoral transaction.

Trouse for the young Vice President of the Harris Trust & Savings Bank objected that Clark had tried to capitalize on his wife's alleged intimacy with Harris. The judge upheld the argument and threw the suit out of court.

In his ruling Judge John R. Caverly said Clark and his divorced wife, the former Dorothy Funk of Des Moines, had operated a "badger game" against Harris.

The suit was based on an alleged contract made by Harris to pay Clark $500 a month for life, agreed upon when Clark returned to his Madison, Wis., home after a trip and found Mrs. Clark secured with his wife. Mrs. Clark secured the divorce, but Clark obtained custody of their two children.

fare. Special legislative work will be undertaken by the Governor's Committee.

The League is also interested in the measures dealing with unemployment compensation. The contemplated bills are designed to:

1. Co-ordinate the system of local, state and national unemployment exchanges. This necessitates: (a) a trained personnel and (b) sufficiently numerous and adequately housed offices.

2. Sound administration of unemployment relief. This demands: (a) setting-up machinery (1) State Department of Public Welfare as the chief unit and (2) County unit or combined counties; (b) trained personnel chosen by the merit system.

Also, the League has been studying the Council Manager plan of government. The proposal along these lines would make it possible for cities over 5,000 in population to adopt the council manager form of government.

Another measure of vital interest is that dealing with permanent registrar throughout the year. The proposed bill applies to cities under the city election law only.

Among the local League presidents attending the convention are: Mrs. Jasper King, Winnetka; Mrs. Marjorie Howe Dixon, North DuPage; Mrs. G. W. Farrar, Ottawa; Mrs. Howard Knight, Elgin; Mrs. John E. DRUGGISTS AND HEALTH

PEOPLE may wisecrack about the drug store being a "miniature department store," but his customer's health still is the retail druggist's chief concern.

Samuel L. Antonow, head of the American Druggists' Syndicate, gave voice to this thought recently in commenting on the national drug store survey made by the United States Department of Commerce. "In the stores studied," said Mr. Antonow, "the prescription department was found to account for almost a fifth of the total sales. But when such things as proprietary medicines, drug sundries, hospital supplies, toilet requisites, infant foods and so on are considered in addition to the prescription department, it is found that the major portion of the business of the average independent retail drug store is devoted to public health."

Among the other interesting things Mr. Antonow brought out were the following: The average family has five prescriptions filled annually. The average prescription is priced somewhere between 75 cents and a dollar. Many more prescriptions are ordered during the winter than in the summer months. January and February are the "boom" months for the prescription counter.

Mr. Antonow also revealed that historically the drug store fountain had its beginning in the prescription department. Not so many years ago carbonated water was dispensed in the drug store as a remedy for indigestion and other ailments. After a few years the beverage possibilities of carbonated water were discovered, and it began to be customary to carry a few favors for use in this connection.

Shirring Lifts Chic Neck-high

BY JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

When your best man takes you to lunch and the matinee, you can be sure you are doing him proud if you are a chic study in black and white. Nothing on earth gives a woman intriguing charm with as little effort as a black dress with just the right white touches.

Don't take the obvious collar and cuff method of getting your white touches. Everybody does that. The newest daytime things have fascinating ways of lightening their dark surfaces that are original in cut and hard to copy.

The rougher the crinkles in your black crepe dress, the surer you are of chic. And if your crinkly white trim gets more crinkles into itself by shirring, then you have nothing left to worry about.

This luncheon-matinee dress is a very crinkly black crepe, cut on moulded princess lines, with leg-o-mutton sleeves to heighten the effect of a small waistline.

Shirred white crepe cuts an effective swath across the neckline and shoulders, making a bateau neck and loops of white circling down around the full top of the sleeve, looping back up to meet the back of the white collar.

Three crepe buttons, outlined in small brilliants, give a new slant on button trimming this winter.

With this dress, you can wear one of the new little tricorn hats, saucy and becoming, with an eyebrow veil in an open square-meshed design.

HOMING

By Helen Welshmer

THEY who know adventure, Green stars, ships, wine seas, Have they been heart-hungry, For such things as these:

ONE house, small and laughing, Halfway down a hill, Fire-bright in the gloaming— Women always will WANT a twilight shelter, And one man who comes Homeward, never heeding Fanfare and the drums.

THERE are many Heavens— I've known one or two, I've been up a spring road When the world was new.

AND I've learned that gipsies, Whose paths go astray Under flame-red slippers Through the vagrant day,

NEVER stroll in darkness— Always with the night, They go seeking shelter, Love and candlelight.

EXPLORATIONS INTO THE UNKNOWN.

A University of California professor, using an electric-magnetic gun, has broken down an atom of lithium; and while most of us couldn't begin to understand this experiment even if someone drew a diagram of it for us, science hails it as a great achievement, and it may ultimately have a very profound influence on what our grandchildren think and feel and believe.

For what this California physicist is trying to do is to discover the composition of matter—that unspeakably deep mystery which, these days, seems to float almost within reach of the microscopes, the test tubes and the complicated paraphernalia of the physical laboratory. And if, by chance, he should succeed, the philosophers and the theologians will have material enough to set them theorizing for a century.

Each new bit of genuine knowledge about the way the world is made modifies mankind's conception of its own place in the world and its own destiny. The borderland of the unknown has been retreating ever since the stone age, and, as it withdraws, men's ideas about what they are and where they came from and what they are supposed to be doing here have broadened and developed.

But this development, lately, hasn't been altogether good for us. It has led, in many quarters, to pessimism and materialism; forces which have seeped down persistently, leaving many of us with a feeling that we are helpless creatures gone astray in an utterly indifferent universe, creatures who have neither a sure home beyond the sunset nor a very enduring one on earth. Our literature, our philosophies, our religion—all have felt the effect.

We know too much, perhaps—or is it just possible that we do not know half enough? Compared with the people of Caesar Augustus' day, for instance, we are all-wise; compared with those of 2000 years in the future we are amazingly ignorant, mere children who have just learned the alphabet.

Our chief hope, probably, is that the frontier of knowledge will be pushed back in the next century at the same rate as in the last one. Half-knowledge is dangerous. We do not yet know enough to be cocksure about our pessimism.

OBSCENE CENSORSHIP.

That sprightly magazine, The New Yorker, not long ago recounted an anecdote which reveals the stupidities of customs censorship about as well as anything could.

There was published in this country a few months since a book of more or less ribald cartoons and sketches. The book was funny and mildly improper, but no one tried to suppress it, and to this day it can be sold openly at any store or newsstand.

After American publication, a London firm bought English publishing rights and printed the book in England. Its humor was a bit broad for that land, however, and half a dozen or so of the grosser sketches were omitted.

Then a copy of the English edition was sent to an American—and was held up by the customs authorities, who declared the book was obscene and could not be shipped into this country!

Of these three things—wine, women and song—I place first song, my work. But women and wine—they are the furniture of the house.—Feodore Chaliapin, Russian basso.

The ability of the press to inform and educate the people is one of the safeguards of the democratic form of government.—Louis Wiley, business manager, The New York Times.

If parents taught children nothing worse than the story of Santa Claus, we would have an ideal civilization.—Dr. Max Schoen, department of psychology, Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Here I am, out of a job, and you folks are all celebrating.—Walter Johnson, former star pitcher and manager of the Washington Senators, at testimonial dinner marking his retirement.

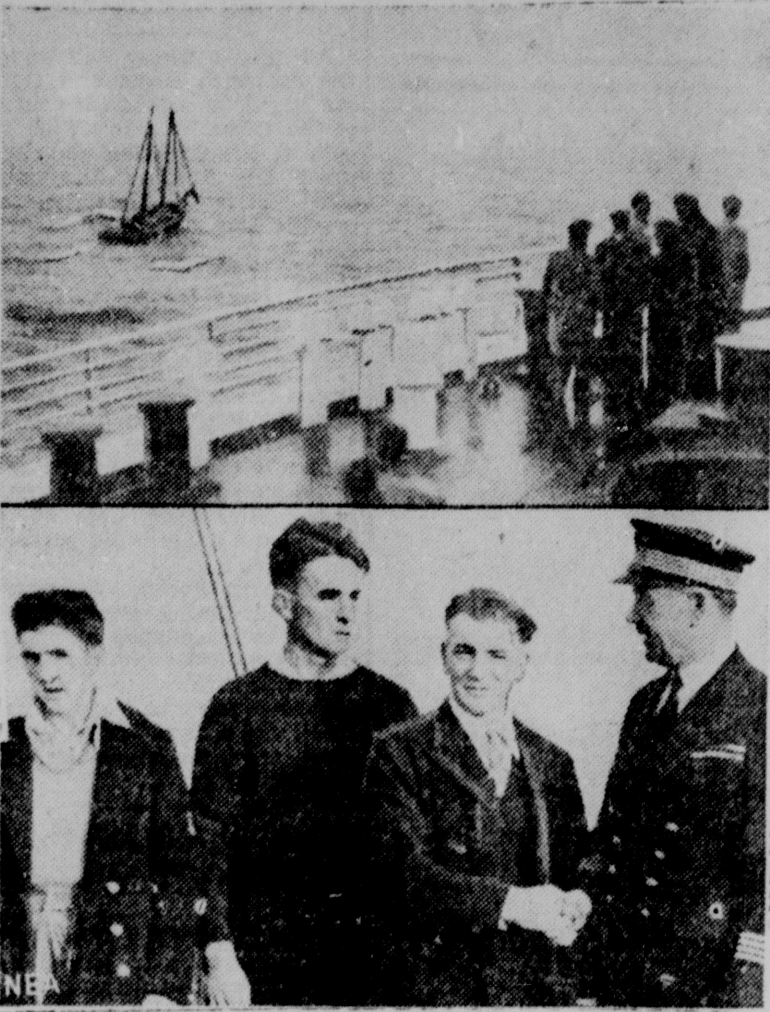

Mrs. Garner and I have made it a fast rule not to accept any social invitations. We prefer carrying on the practice of "early to bed and early to rise" we began years ago.—Vice President-elect John N. Garner.

I'm never going to marry again. Freedom is sweet.—Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy-Hudson, mother of Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson.

I don't think. I write. There's something profounder than thought. The human brain is nothing but the fountain pen from which the ink flows.—Benjamin De Cassers, author.

As a veteran of the steel industry, I feel confident in affirming to our young people that the United States will yet see better times than it has enjoyed in the past.—Charles M. Schwab, chairman Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Saved From Sinking Schooner

For four days and nights the lumber schooner Clemencia had drifted helplessly before a north Atlantic gale. Then the French liner De Grasse sighted distress signals and stood by through a night of heavy seas to effect a daylight rescue. The top picture, taken from the liner's forward deck, shows the foundering schooner as a lifeboat went to the aid of four survivors of the crew. Three of the latter are shown below as Captain Pierre Thoreaux, right, commander of the De Grasse, received their thanks. Earl Nickerson, left, 16-year-old apprentice was the hero of the adventure. After using all the schooner's flares he burned his coat and attracted the rescuers' attention.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRISTIANS USE OF LEISURE

By WILLIAM E. GILROY

There are a great number of people in America, both Christian and non-Christian, who have had of late more leisure than anything else. One of the most serious problems of unemployment is that relatively few people know how to make good and profitable use of time that is not engaged in needful rest or in actual work; and when people are confronted with more leisure than they already know what to do with, the problem is accentuated many fold.

The art of using leisure well, however, is not confined to the unemployed. No sensible person wants to allow any part of his life to be useless or wasted. He wants to employ his leisure time as profitable as any other part of his time, allowing, of course, for the

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tynmites ran here and there because they really didn't care to have the smart court jester hit them with his big balloon.

Poor Duncy was the victim now. Cried he, "Who started all this row? The jester has popped me several times. I will run out pretty soon."

"Oh, don't mind me," the jester cried. "This soft balloon won't hurt your hide. I have to make the wee king laugh or I shall get no lunch."

"He loves to smile, but can't unless somebody tickles him. I guess that's why whatever I may do may seem a crazy lurch."

Then Duncy, still in quite a fix, cried, "Let us see you do some tricks. I will race you turning flip flops. Come on, let's see who is the best."

"A good idea," said the king. "We now will stage that very thing. You two can start the fun and then we'll try all the rest."

"Hurray!" said Duncy. "I'll be first. I surely hope I'm not the worse." He then did several hand-springs that were clever as could be.

The Tynmites clapped. So did the king. "Aw shucks, that is not anything," exclaimed the little Jester. "Now, just keep your eyes on me." They watched him run and jump and skip and then fall in a backward flip. He rolled around upon the floor and cried, "Oh, I can't stop."

He then bumped Duncy in the knees. The jester was an awful tease. Poor Duncy was caught un-awares and took a sudden flop.

"I'll pay you back for this young man," said Duncy, as he quickly ran right up and caught the jester. "I was very rudely floored."

He held the lad as best he could across his knees and spanked him good. The Tynmites and the Weeland king stood by and simply roared.

(The Tynmites see all the king's horses and all the king's men in the next story.)

BURGOS CATHEDRAL IS ONE OF SPAIN'S FINEST

Founded in 1221 and 300 Years in the Building, This Ancient Edifice Holds a Notable Place In Gothic Architecture

Burgos cathedral, regarded the most romantic and Spanish of all the cathedrals in the peninsula.

fact that leisure would not be leisure if it were filled with hard and difficult tasks.

A farmer, who was a very busy worker himself, once asked me how it was that so many people could gather together to listen to Jesus wherever he happened to be speaking. He seemed to think that the people of ancient Palestine had rather an easy time.

However, when we recall that a little country like Galilee had probably a population of two million people in the days of Christ, we can understand that it was not remarkable that crowds of several hundreds should almost always have been available to listen to anyone who could tell them an interesting story or who could give to them some new and remarkable teaching.

Our leisure time ought to have two values for us. It ought to give us rest and refreshment, sending us to our real work with new vigor, and it ought to provide us with the help and vision that come from reflection.

In the busy work of life often we do not have time to think or to see our tasks in perspective, but with the leisure that every honest and faithful worker ought to have, work itself becomes more intelligently conceived and directed.

The Bible, while it lays great stress upon work, lays also great stress upon rest and leisure. The Sabbath and the Christian Sunday, whatever may have been their distant origin, seem to be peculiar to the religion that has its source in Palestine.

Our modern world with its rush and speed, and its disregard for the need of any rest day, is strangely at variance in its idealism and wisdom with the discernment and practice of Jews and Christians, who have laid great stress upon the need of a day of rest.

In addition to this weekly rest day it is interesting to discover how much of the holiday and festival spirit there was in the life of the Jewish people. We can set altogether too light a value on the communal aspect of life in any community which lays stress upon this festival and holiday spirit.

With the progress of machine civilization, when machines are very easily displacing enormous numbers of men, one solution for this acute problem would be to let the machine do more of the work than men have done and free humanity for a larger life of leisure and play.

That seems, in fact, to be the only solution for the problems of our enormously increased machine production. But if that solution comes, it will put upon men and women more than ever before the obligation to find the means of using their leisure time well.

In the teaching and practice of Jesus he laid much stress upon rest and prayer, and there is something invigorating and significant in the example of one who spent so much time in the fields and in the desert places in communion with nature as well as in communion with God and man.

Traveling Around America

WALK ON THIS RUG?

YES it is a rug—but who could step on anything so gorgeous? And the handwoven shawls and serapes, the hand wrought pottery, the cleverly woven baskets in Mexican markets are equally as gorgeous. They seem to have borrowed their brilliant colorings from the tropical flowers which run riot in Mexico's beautiful floating gardens. In fact all the Spanish Americans seem to favor bright hues.

The Central American Indian loves his colors. Some tribes refuse to reveal the secret formula for their everlasting dyes, or to disclose the names of the plants from which they are obtained. The ancient method of making the famous cochineal dyes is however, well known. The cochineal is an insect which clings to the leaves of the nopal. These insects were gathered by the thousands and baked until brown—to make the red or cardinal dyes; or mixed with boiling water until almost black—to make blue and violet dyes. The beautiful color combinations developed in native handwork always intrigue visiting shoppers. As travel resorts and trade centers, Mexico and the Central Americans have become so important that one American steamship company is spending $20,000,000 building four new ships for its fleet, which now makes fortnightly cruises between New York and California by way of the Canal and the Central American.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rain' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly feel like a new man.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your health is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Remember, substitute 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. C.

A BOOK A DAY

A NEW EPOCH

A new kind of civilization is at hand in the world. It is a product of the machine age, and although its approach fills the highbrows with terror it will probably turn out to be a very good thing.

So says C. Delisle Burns in "Leisure in the Modern World," an illuminating and stimulating discussion of new trends in present-day life.

In the past, says Mr. Burns, every civilization was mainly the product of a small leisure class which was the undisputed top-dog in its social set-up. The leisure class had to be supported by a great mass of slaves—actual slaves, in ancient Greece and Rome, serfs and helpless peasants in more in the middle ages, wage slaves modern times.

Now however, machinery has changed everything. The erstwhile slaves have been set free. The world can get its work done now without requiring more than a few hours' work a day from its humblest servant. The ordinary man has a leisure that he never had before, and he will have more of it as the years pass.

And it will be this spare time, rather than his job, that sets the key for his life. Out of this universalized leisure is emerging a new civilization. The importance of the old leisure class is ended. We shall become more and more democratic, and as we do we must find more satisfying and worth-while types of recreation; and in all of this there are magnificent possibilities for the entire human race.

Local basketball was ushered in last evening with the opening of the 1932-33 Commercial League schedule, the trio of games being played on the high school gym floor. It allowed fans their first glimpse of the cage game as played under the new 10-second rule, which forces the offensive team to advance the ball into their opponents territory within the ten-second period. The games were considerably speedier with a few violations being penalized.

To start the evening's entertainment Beier's Loafers made their bow in the court game. However, the Reynolds outfit was on the long end of the score, 19-9. Heavy scoring in the last quarter gave the Reynolds Co. ten points to the Loafers' single tally, for the deciding margin. Pitney led the scoring for the winners; Hasselberg for the losers.

Ashton appeared on the scene and almost upset the Dixon Ghouls. The more desperate of the final quarter rallies was initiated by the Dixon team. Trailing by an 18-11 score to start the last eight minute period, the Dixon five dropped in fourteen points to take the verdict 25 to 20. Carlson and O'Malley led in the scoring for the Ghoulies; Oburn of Ashton copied the honors by ringing four baskets.

The best contest of the evening resulted in the final, the thriller being taken by the Dixon Battery Shop from Polo, 25 to 24. The Battery Boys surprised the fans by hopping off to a 10-2 advantage in the first quarter. In keeping with the first two affairs, Polo stepped out in the second half to climb up within a point of the victors. The game ended with the reputedly strong Polo team in the losers' role. Krum, former Mt. Carmel star, was clicking to sink six buckets and top high total for the evening. L. Miller, with nine points, and Scott of Polo with eight were next in line.

Next Wednesday in the high school gym the second set of games will be played.

Cubs And Sox Will Meet In Two Games

Chicago, Dec. 9 —(AP)—Chicago's two major league entries, the Cubs and White Sox, will meet in two games before the 1933 season opens. One game will be played at Comiskey park, April 8, and the other the next day at Wrigley Field.

The two teams never have played a pre-season game against each other.

Do You Remember?

One Year Ago Today —Carl H. Hageman of Lorain, Ohio, was elected captain of Harvard's 1932 football squad. Stanley Harris was renamed to lead the Detroit Tigers in 1932.

Five Years Ago Today —Appointment of Art Fletcher as manager of the Cleveland Indians was denied by Indian officials. The Cleveland club got Grover Hartley, veteran catcher, on waivers from the Boston Red Sox.

Ten Years Ago Today —Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavy, signed for a 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden, Jan. 12. The winner was to meet Firpo the "Wild Bull" from the Argentine. Gertrude Ederle set a new mark of 1 minute and 6 seconds in the 100 yard free style swim for women.

KID CHOCOLATE IS FAVORITE IN FRIDAY'S BATTLE

He And LaBarba Have Chance To Restore Glamor To Class

New York, Dec. 8 —(AP)—Kid Chocolate, a slim, Negro boy, dazzling in his skill, and a chunky curly-headed puncher from California, Fidel LaBarba, can bring back to the featherweight division Friday night some of the glamor and thrill a great fighting weight has been losing steadily with the years.

They meet for 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden, with Chocolate's claim to the featherweight championship, granted by the New York State Athletic Commission, at stake.

With these two rests much of whatever chance the 126-pound class has at the moment of regaining the prestige the division knew when it was ruled by such men as "Ike" Wier, the "Belfast Spider" Terry McGovern; Abe Attell; and the prototype of all Negro warriors since his day, George Dixon, the "Little Chocolate."

Class Has Topped

The featherweight class has taken on weight and topped far since Wier, a skinny Scottish lad, won recognition as the first champion back in the 30's. With less fuss than a preliminary boy makes today over a four round emergency appearance, the "Spider" came to America and fought Frank Murphy, an Englishman, 80 rounds, to a draw in defense of his honors.

The title passed in 1890 to Billy Murphy, an Australian, who soon outgrew the weight limit that stood then at 118 pounds. He forfeited and along came George Dixon, the same year, to fight Nuncie Wallace, in a London ring, for the championship and a side-bet of $2,000.

Then came Terry

Then a human torpedo, as great in his way as Dixon, and as opposite in his fighting style, "Terrible Terry" McGovern, caught the Negro master on the down-grade in 1899 and knocked him out in eight rounds.

But McGovern, great as he was, met an early master, an unknown from Denver, Young Corbett, fresh as the morning dew, caught Terry at Hartford, Conn., in 1901 and shocked the faithful with a two-round knockout. They fought at 126 pounds, eight above the limit, and Corbett never claimed the title.

Both quit the featherweight ranks and Abe Attell fought the first "Brooklyn Tommy" Sullivan, for the championship in 1904 with the weight limit raised to 122 pounds. Sullivan won the first time on a foul, but Attell scored a four-round knockout in their second battle.

Glamorous Line

Then came a glamorous line of champions: Johnny Kilbane, conqueror of Attell in 20 rounds in 1912; Eugene Ciriqli, lion-hearted Frenchman with the war-torn face who knocked out Kilbane in six rounds at the Polo Grounds in 1923, and lost the crown only six months later to bounding Johnny Dundee.

Evil times fell upon the class with Dundee's retirement in 1925. A tournament crowned Louie Kid Kaplan champion in 1927, another made Benny Bass his successor, and in 1928 Tony Canzoneri, present lightweight king, whipped Bass. Andre Rottis beat Canzoneri, Bat Battalino defeated Rottis, and excess weight forced Bat out a year ago.

Now New York recognizes Chocolate as champion; the National Boxing Association claims Tommy Paul, and California hails Babe Arizmendi as the titleholder. So Chocolate and LaBarba, the latter a former flyweight champion, can settle only one-third of the controversy. Odds favor Chocolate slightly. Each has won a ten round decision in two previous meetings.

DIXON CAGERS GET READY TO OPEN SCHEDULE

Intensive Practice Is The Order Of Day At High School

By DON HILLIKER

Basketball is in full swing at the local high school preparing for the Polo opener on Friday, December 16. Intensive daily drill is the program with thirty-two candidates under the tutelage of Coach L. E. Sharpe and his assistant, C. B. Lindell.

Prospects are the best in four years. Coach Sharpe's squad has plenty of pep in the preparatory sessions, a characteristic that has been lacking in the past. This one good omen is accompanied by height, ability and the spirit, which gives strong hopes for a strong team, to meet the stiff 1932-1933 schedule. The forward positions are likely to have small but fast holders, but the center and guards will have the necessary altitude to replace the midget five of last winter.

Fans as well as the students are pulling for the high school quintet.

The local preps have a poor reputation in the North Central cage discussions. Dixon has the disastrous record of having won but one N. C. I. C. game in three years, that from DeKalb in 1930. Naturally it develops that Dixon has been the foundation of the league in basketball, landing in the cellar each year.

Therefore it is hoped that a better showing will result in the current season. It is time for local followers to be rewarded after undergoing the mishaps of the past few years.

Nut League

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer

Hooks and Slides

By BILL BRAUCHER

Purdue is making a strong bid for Bill Dwyer and Captain Paul McDavid of this year's football team. They have had an alumnus acting as scout at several of the games here this fall and he has gotten in touch with a couple of the local stars. As a result, a trip to Lafayette, Ind., was arranged for last Saturday where the boys met Duane Purvis, former Sullivan boy and later a Mattoon high school star who is a member of the Purdue team.

"The local boys were royally entertained at Lafayette and got to see the strong Purdue team in action. Things were made very pleasant for the boys with the hope that the boys might go to school there next year."

SCOUTING AROUND —
Operative Eddie Jacquin, sports scribe at Champaign, Ill., casts an interesting sidelight on the activities of Purdue old grads in Illinois. Maybe the reason the Illinois football team hasn't been so hot the last few years is due to the zeal of the Purdue grads. I don't know.

Jacquin and Milt Olander, assistant Illi coach, attended a banquet at Sullivan, Ill., recently, honoring the Okav Valley champions. Jacquin reports that Purdue pressure is being brought to bear to bring Dwyer and McDavid, two Sullivan backfield aces, to dear old Lafayette.

Olander addressed the assembled athletes, including Dwyer and McDavid, stressing the fact that Illinois welcomed athletes (as what big school now doesn't).

"But there is no cutting the corners at Illinois," said he. "It's the boy who pays the penalty when he is given a handout all the way through college." Sinister words, coach, but spoken like a scholar!

HOW IT'S DONE —
Jacquin pointed out that Jim and Duane Purvis, Purdue stars, came from Mattoon. Jim having played for two years at Sullivan. He went on to quote from the Moultrie County News, published at Sullivan. Here are a few of the quotes, offered here not with a view of editorializing against Purdue, but illustrating a common practice of athletic agitation:

GOLFERS START PLAY TODAY IN 'FRISCO TOURNEY

Sixty-four Pros To Compete For Honors In National Open

San Francisco, Dec. 8 —(AP)—Sixty-four stars of professional and amateur golf, survivors of the qualifying round of San Francisco's National Open, match, play championship, tee off on Lakeside course here today for the first paired rounds.

Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Calif., professional, who led yesterday's qualifying field with a sub-par 70, meets Dick Fry of Oakland in the top contest of the upper bracket. Fry shot 76.

Charley Sheppard, Northern California open titleholder, leads off the lower bracket in a match with Al Zimmerman of Portland, Oregon.

Jimmy Thompson of Colorado Springs, Colo., who tied with Sheppard in a one-over-par 72 qualifying score, is paired with Al Collins of Kansas City, Mo., in an upper bracket match.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente professional, one of the favorites in pre-tournament selections, takes on Mike Murra of Wichita, Kas. Diegel shot a 73 and Murra a 76 yesterday.

Smith Just Made It

Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., another favorite, faces Romie Espinosa of San Francisco. Smith managed to keep in the running with a 77. Espinosa turned in a 73 to rank among the ten highest qualifiers.

Bud Ward of Olympia, Wash., who led the amateur qualifiers with a 74, meets Frank Walsh of Morton Grove, Ill.

Other pairings include: Dick A. Metz, San Antonio, vs. Archie Hambrick, Zanesville, O.; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., vs. W. J. Schwartz, St. Louis; Charles men co-operate with the athletic department of the school at Purdue. They have alumni to report on any high school stars that appear to be prospective material for Purdue teams. Arrangements then are made for the athletes to visit Lafayette where they are royally entertained.

"Merchants co-operate by offering jobs to the prospective athletes so they can help make their way through school."

"By this practice Purdue has gained many athletic stars. Two of the Purvis boys, James and Duane, have gone to Purdue and the athletic fans there went even so far as to get employment there for Mr. Purvis so the family could move there from Mattoon. He is a janitor of one of the buildings at the university."

That gives you a picture of how it's done. Very interesting.

OWNERS OF BIG LEAGUE OUTFITS EXPRESS VIEWS

All Agree Expenses Of Maintaining Teams Must Be Cut

New York, Dec. 8 —(AP)—"Expenses from top to bottom will have to be cut," says Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"More trades," says Billy Evans of Cleveland. "Stronger clubs should dispose of surplus talent to weaker clubs."

"Our player limit should be lowered to 22," says Gerald P. Nugent of the Phillies.

"Baseball is a highly speculative interest. The club owners assume all the risks," says Charles A. Stoneham of the New York Giants.

"The player must hustle every minute and show he appreciates the fans' interest," says Bob Quinn of the Boston Red Sox.

"Give the fans a winner and they'll break down your fences to get in," says Louis Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox.

These are some of the opinions expressed by major league club owners in a copyright symposium gathered by the World-Telegram in anticipation of the annual major league meetings next week.

Owners Contribute

All of the 16 club owners of the two big leagues have contributed their opinions as to what baseball and what should be done about it. With a few exceptions they agree that salaries and all overhead expenses must be sharply reduced, that showmanship must be improved by putting on such added attractions as field days, old timers' games, band concerts along with the growing custom of having ladies' and boys' days, and that the player limit should not be lowered.

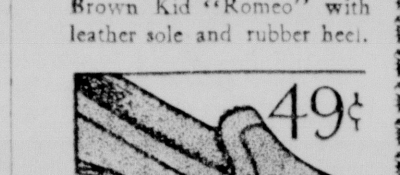

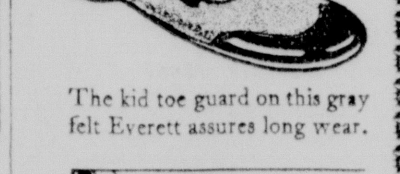

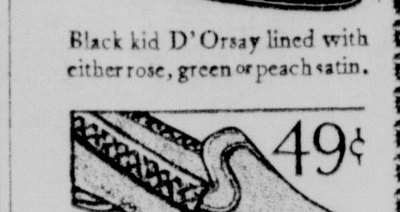

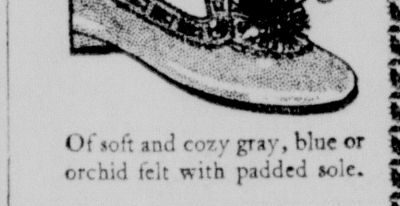

A majority vote favors shorter and more nearly uniform training seasons while the value of radio broadcasts is questioned. Most of the owners favor banning the radio at all except world series games but a few favor it strongly.

Three clubs, the Boston Braves, Brooklyn and the New York Yankees oppose a general reduction of salaries, claiming that publicity along these lines is harmful and that each club should set its own financial standards. Emil Fuchs, owner of the Braves, adds, however, "players should share in the good fortune of clubs, and also stand their share of financial bad luck."

The name "cedar" is loosely applied to several species of trees in America, all of which are junipers. The familiar red cedar bears the scientific name of Juniperus Virginiana, whereas the trees of the genus Cedrus, or the true cedars, are all trees of the old world. Nevertheless, Americans will continue to call for "cedar chests" when storing woolen goods, for a name so well established is not easily changed.

EVANGELIST IS NOW READY FOR REAL PREACHING

Congregations Find Harry James Of Much Interest

So interested was Evangelist Harry R. James large audience at the evangelistic service last night in his feature sermon "The Bible and Science" that they would evidently have listened for three hours as rapidly as the one hour that the celebrated evangelist used in presenting that really remarkable sermon, irreproachable in its reasoning and logic.

"My quarrel is not with scientists, but false science," declared the evangelist in opening his address. "True scientists have no better friend in the world than Harry James. And true scientists do not presume to know more than God; it is only the narrow-minded little fellows who twist so-called scientific facts to try to refute God's word."

"I declare to you that the Bible is hundreds and thousands of years ahead of the greatest scientists of yesterday and today, and will be that far ahead of the scientists of tomorrow."

"I declare that despite statements to the contrary, not one known scientific fact has discredited the Bible in the least. On the other hand, the Bible shows evidence of the writer's knowledge, thousands of years ago, of principles which we are just now discovering; of events that are just now happening."

To the astonishment and amazement of the audience, Evangelist James brought to their attention many facts that were recorded in God's word thousands of years before scientists made their discovery; he also surprised the audience by showing them that the coming of many of our modern inventions were prophesied in the Bible centuries ago.

Mr. James is conducting afternoon prayer meetings at 2:30 each afternoon in the church. Last night he said, "I have now laid the foundation for a great revival and am now ready to begin to preach."

The prayer meeting begins at 7 o'clock. Song service at 7:30. The subject for tonight will be, "Getting a Hair Cut in the Devil's Barber Shop."

The Funniest Sayings of ABE MARTIN

As Selected By George Ade

"I'll abuse my housewife's privileges to the utmost," Linda made a grimace as she rubbed her throat. "But the others sat in the sun. They may have burned, too."

"A man's collar protects his neck to some extent. One or two may have a touch of it but you're not apt to find everyone in the same house using the same salve, either. That camphor smell makes the stuff unmixable. But while you're looking you might watch out for different sorts of ointment in the various rooms."

"If I find the towel, shall I take it away?"

"By all means. If that stuff really shows, it'll be obviously soiled. That shouldn't arouse suspicion—to have it disappear, I mean. But will it be there so late in the day?"

"There's a chance, but it's only a chance. Rosie usually goes around before time to dress for dinner and leaves out fresh linen. With all the excitement she may not have had time. Usually she would have, but so much has happened—"

"Even finding it later in the laundry would mean something. But for heaven's sake, Linda, look now! Stop talking and get busy!"

"Here goes!" She went toward their own bathroom.

"Why start there?"

Brief Summary of Last Night's News

(By The Associated Press)

Chicago—Two bandits had the nerve to rob a filling station directly across the street from an outlying police station. Thoroughly aroused, police set out to arrest them and soon had them both, they claimed. One of those arrested, James Raider, 30, was shot through the ear by a police bullet. The other gave his name as James Blackwell, 28, of Wheeling, West Virginia.

Chicago—Discovery of $100,000 in forged bonds of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York led to the arrest of three men. They are Maurice Hill, a lawyer, and Leo Goodman, a broker, accused of counterfeiting and Jacob Keno, accused of conspiracy. All were held to the grand jury.

Chicago—When receivers for income producing property agree to pay all bills they must also pay at least 60 per cent of back taxes due on the properties. Judges Robert E. Gentzel and Dennis E. Sullivan have decided. Receivers who fail to pay taxes will be removed, the judges said after discovering receivers for a local hotel had not paid taxes although they had over $286,000 in cash on hand.

Chicago—Hilda Sousa, 21, and Harold Anderson, 23, will be married Sunday as they originally planned, they said. Hilda lies in a hospital with a broken back, received in an automobile accident in which Harold was the driver.

Chicago—Ways to stretch the dollar were planned by the Chicago and Cook county Federation of Women's Organizations at a board meeting. A budget system based on changing conditions is the basis of their plan. To Miss Bernice Dodge, formerly in the Home Economics Department in the University of Wisconsin, they are turning for ideas.

Week-end MURDER

GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH
© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

AMON PEARBODY, elderly cousin of LINDA AVERILL, falls to his death from the second story balcony of the Averills' long island home. Linda reaches him just before he dies, in time to hear him gasp a few words which convince her he was murdered. Linda rushes upstairs. Someone tries to strangle her and she falls in a faint.

There are four guests to the house—all suspects of the crime. They are: MR. STANTLANDER, business associate of TOM AVERILL; CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian; MARVIN PRATT, former suitor of Linda's; and LIAH SHAUGHNESSY, Irish writer. When Linda tells her husband what happened she persuades him they must keep these four men in the house until they can decide which one is guilty. There is no evidence sufficient for arrest. Tom and Linda are aided in their plan when DR. BOYLE, official medical examiner, sends word that everyone must remain in the house until questioned. Boyle is on a fishing trip and can not return for several hours.

Linda overhears a conversation between Shaughnessy and ROSIE, the maid, concerning a shirt. Rosie has promised to launder it.

Tom and Linda talk to each guest in turn but learn little. Linda believes it was a Turkish towel with which she was strangled. She had put anubus ointment on her shoulder the night before and if she can find a towel marked with this ointment it may help them locate the murderer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI TOM'S hands clenched unconsciously. "Whoever has that towel will have said to me," he exclaimed, "Your blessed little neck, Binks! Look every where! Don't mind poking into bureau drawers—"

"I'll abuse my housewife's privileges to the utmost," Linda made a grimace as she rubbed her throat. "But the others sat in the sun. They may have burned, too."

"A man's collar protects his neck to some extent. One or two may have a touch of it but you're not apt to find everyone in the same house using the same salve, either. That camphor smell makes the stuff unmixable. But while you're looking you might watch out for different sorts of ointment in the various rooms."

"If I find the towel, shall I take it away?"

"By all means. If that stuff really shows, it'll be obviously soiled. That shouldn't arouse suspicion—to have it disappear, I mean. But will it be there so late in the day?"

"There's a chance, but it's only a chance. Rosie usually goes around before time to dress for dinner and leaves out fresh linen. With all the excitement she may not have had time. Usually she would have, but so much has happened—"

"Even finding it later in the laundry would mean something. But for heaven's sake, Linda, look now! Stop talking and get busy!"

"Here goes!" She went toward their own bathroom.

"Why start there?"

"It would be a slick trick, wouldn't it, to plant it on us while we were both downstairs? But probably it isn't here—I'll just make sure."

AFTER clearing her own racks of suspicion, Linda listened carefully at the door of their room.

"I hope everyone's downstairs," she said. "It seems quiet up here."

Tom looked out the window. DeVos and Stantlander are down on the lawn. Shaughnessy would have no reason to be up here and that leaves Pratt only.

"I'll have to take a chance on him. He'd be least curious of them all and I'll act very much the housewife if I meet him. In fact, I'll go and knock on his door and, if he answers, I can think up something to ask him."

Determining by this simple stratagem that Pratt's room was empty, as was the bathroom which he and the Belgian shared, she started her search at the other end of the hall. Plenty of towels there, but not so many bath towels. How lavish men were in their use! Two different brands of shaving cream and one standard suburban ointment, but not the one she used. Only one other possibility—the bathroom at the other end of the hall which Mr. Stantlander alone was using.

When she saw it she could hardly believe her eyes. Creased—but the creases running roughly from end to end as though pulled strongly apart from the hem—and, marking the central one, an unmistakable smear of yellowish grease. She smelt it—yes, that was the characteristic camphor smell! Then with a quiver of retrospective fear, she lifted the towel, threw it and placed it around her thro t. No, that didn't seem quite right. She reversed the towel, and felt the smeared creases against the hot skin at the back of her neck. Yes, it had been pulled that way.

She had found it not on a towel but on a shirt, carefully, man-fashion, over the tub, but at the bottom of the hamper, otherwise empty. She knew one didn't drop anything into a hamper by accident. One lifted the lid and did it deliberately. And men, she reasoned, especially week-enders, never bothered with hampers. They expected to find a multitude of clean towels, always ready, and to have so "ones spritzed away by the hand that brought the fresh ones. If a woman had had the room, the clew of the hamper would mean less. But a man—!

While she had been thinking Linda had snatched from the bar a used face towel, straightened the remaining ones, dropped a fresh cake of soap into the tub dish and otherwise attempted to give the room a "done" appearance which would account for the disappearance of the towel if it were missed. She hoped of course that it would not be. Then, dropping the several things she had collected negligently over her arm, she retreated as quickly as she could without actually running to the safe harbor of her own room.

Tom had gone down. That was sensible of him. But it was disappointing, too. She would have liked to show him her prize. Now she must hide it. Anyone who knew enough to conceal it in the first place might try to trace it and with the discovery realize that he was suspected. Under the mattress? No, everyone hid things there—it would be the first place to look. Behind a chest of drawers? No, it could be plainly seen if it dropped to the floor.

She flew into her bathroom, snatched down towels already there and draped the soiled one over a bar. Then across it she hung other bath towels and, over them, several face towels.

Feeling very well satisfied with the place of concealment, she dabbed powder on her nose and hurried after Tom.

COMING demurely downstairs, Linda heard voices in the room beneath and at the foot of the stairs met the three guests whom she would least have liked to encounter five minutes before—DeVos, Stantlander and Marvin Pratt. She greeted them with friendly solicitude and suddenly altered her plans. This was the time to broach the next step in her campaign.

"There's no word of Dr. Boyle," she said, "and there's more than a fair chance that he won't get back until late tonight. Do you know, I'll feel much better satisfied if you will stay the night here. You are not inconveniencing us a bit—in fact, we like to have you. And it will be so much pleasanter if you don't feel you have to rush off to get a late train to town. Do let me tell Tom that you'll stay over and then we can see tomorrow how you feel about going in."

Standing a step or two above them she had the advantage of being able to study their faces carefully and on none but Marvin's did she detect any sign of displeasure at the suggestion. DeVos, reader than the others, bowed with a quick, gracious inclination and answered:

"I shall be delighted, Madame. That is most kind of you. But please do not think you must ask us because of our convenience. I for one wish to do whatever makes it easiest for you."

She smiled as the others murmured their agreement.

"This would, I assure you, I couldn't bear the idea anyhow of your going back, all of you, to the city. If it's hot here, New York must be an oven. But I understand how you felt earlier. Now you have had to stay this long, we'd both far rather have you stay over tonight. Then we won't all be watching the clock and wondering when Dr. Boyle is coming and, if he is late, trying to hurry him—which would probably have just the opposite effect."

"I—" (Mr. Stantlander cleared his throat) "That is quite agreeable to me, Mrs. Averill, if you are sure."

"I'm sure it is most pleasant for us," said Linda firmly. "And you, Marvin?"

AT the direct challenge he met her eyes with that curious effect of almost shamefaced reluctance.

"If you wish," he said curtly, and she stood aside to let them pass.

"That's fine. I'll tell Tom and he'll be as pleased as I. Dinner is very soon now—you won't dress, of course. We'll be here when you are ready."

In the formal drawing room she saw her husband struggling with the balky leg of a folding bridge table and she hurried in, sure that he had overheard enough of the conversation to know its tenor. As he started to speak Linda cut in, breathless and excited.

"They'll stay!"

"Yes, I heard. That's good. But, Linda—"

Again she was so full of her own news that she interrupted him.

"And Tom—I found the towel!" Eagerly she poured out her story, while he paused, the half-folded table in his hand, and listened with growing concern. When she finished he whistled softly.

"Binks, that is a find! Why didn't I give him the works this afternoon? We really had a lot to do—the fall advertising campaign, you know—and I got so engrossed that I didn't realize time was passing till I saw Rosie going out with the tray. Then it was too late and I thought you could call him later, or I could. But that changes things entirely."

Abstractedly he snapped down the remaining leg, slipped the table behind a tall sofa and they drifted toward the door.

"Oh, and Binks," he began, "I saw something—"
